Bubbles or Medals.

"Best sarsaparilla." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is—?.... There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could if you were chemists. But then do you need to test it? The World's Fair Committee tested it,—and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. Those others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles since the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

WHY HE FAILED TO LAUGH.

Was Afraid He Would Miss Something if He Did So.

While a small party of Clevelanders were abroad last year they chanced to be in an English town of limited attractions, and it was suggested that all hands attend the theater in the evening to make up for the disappointment of the day. Now, one of the party is a gentleman of somewhat circumscribed notions about the stage and its mission, and it was feared that he might be a little offended at the suggestion. But, no; he consented to go with great, apparent willingness, and the party set forth.

The play of the evening was one of those hilarious adaptations from the French, where a staid householder of mature years takes a night off and makes the most of it in an atmosphere of champagne and general revelry. As the performance progressed and the fun grew faster and more furious the other members of the party looked at the man with rigid views with considerable solicitation. How would he take it? Would he get up and go out? Might he not even rise from his seat and denounce the performance? But, no; he sat there quietly enough, his face fixed in a look of frozen intentions and his eyes glaring through his spectacles at the spectacle beyond the footlights. However else he might regard the performance, he certainly was not amused. Not a ghost of a smile crossed his face. The others might laugh and nudge each other, but he sat stolidly through it all to the very fall of the curtain.

When they were all going down the stairs, one of the party had the temerity to ask him how he liked the show, and all the others waited with bated breath to hear his withering denunciation. "Why," he pleasantly answered, "it was the funniest thing I ever saw in my life." "B-but," stammered the astonished questioner, "you didn't laugh. You didn't even smile." "No," answered the other, "I didn't laugh because I was afraid I might lose something of it."

And the laughter that followed that silly was far more enjoyable than anything the play brought forth.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

At the Portals of the Unknown.

On one occasion only has any really serious attempt been made to explore and investigate the regions situated to the south of the Antarctic circle, and that attempt, incredible as it may appear, was made more than 50 years ago.

Nothing of importance has been undertaken since. Even the portals of this unknown area can hardly be said to have been approached during that time. Half a century is a long period, especially in this enterprising and adventurous age, when the ever restless and enthusiastic energies of the pioneers of civilization are leaving their indelible footprints over portions of the globe that 50 years ago were deemed almost inaccessible, for one particular part of the world to remain wrapped in the same impenetrable darkness that has surrounded it from time immemorial.

Now, however, the time has arrived when the question of polar research in both hemispheres should be equally considered. There is still much to be done in the north, and so long as gallant explorers, like Nansen, Jackson and Peary continue to devote their energies in that direction, we shall not rest satisfied until the entire area of nearly a million and a half square miles has been faithfully delineated on our maps. But it is an indisputable fact that there is much more than this to be done in the south, for there is more than seven times that extent of undiscovered area to be explored, and although the Antarctic circle has been pierced in two or three places, our geographical knowledge of that region is not only extremely limited, but may be regarded as purely conjectural. In the Antarctic we have absolutely everything to learn.—Admiral A. H. Markham, R. N., in North American Review.

The Parson's Philosophy.

A colored revivalist was told by a member of his church that it wasn't his preaching that converted the people, but the singing of the choir. He replied: "Dat's all right. Ef I kin only ketch 'em, hit down 'make no difference how dey's kitched. De main thing is ter ketch 'em en pitch 'em ter kingdom come."—Atlanta Constitution.

He Tried to Do the Split.

"You promised me," said the young wife, "that you would split some wood after I gave you a meal."

"Madam," replied the tramp, "I broke my promise in the fruitless effort to split the crust of the piece of pie you gave me."

—Philadelphia North American.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, W. Va., and one of the most widely known men in the state, was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered. My physicians told me that nothing could be done for me, and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Company, recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst; but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured."
